TARIFF PICTURES.

New York Press: "Carpet tax" has been singing small lately. No wonder. Every time he shows his head a fact like this hits. An Eighth avenue firm sells Arwinser and Moquette carpets at 79 cents a yard. That is less than the duty, which is 60 cents a square yard and 40 per cent. ad valorem. Carpet is generally a little more than a yard wide, but letting it go at that, the duty on these goods is at least 91 cents a yard. And yet the Millers and other free trade cranks are getting ready to shout in the year 1892 "the tariff is a tax."

NOBLE'S REPORT ON PENSIONS.

In view of the charges that have been made by Democratic politicians and Democratic newspapers, Secretary Noble's annual report as the head of the Interior Department has a striking prediction in respect to pensions, which deserves special notice outside of the various features of government with which he has had to deal. Secretary Noble states that all the pension claims filed, or that can be filed, on which first payments can accrue, will have been passed upon and disposed of within the next three years, and that thereupon there will disappear from the estimates the item of first payments, now amounting to about $30,000,000 annually. The manner in which the Secretary reasons on this deduction is from the showing of statistics that while the benefits of the pension system have been widely extended, the average of first payments is decreasing from previous years, and the average of annual payments to each pensioner is also decreasing.

The figures speak for themselves:

There were 222,521 first payments of every description made during the last fiscal year, requiring $38,562,274.31, being $69,502 less than was required for the $130,514 first payments made during the previous year. The average value of first payments made during the year was $239.38, and the average value of first payments on claims allowed under the act of June 27, 1890, was $71.28. The average value of first payments for the preceding year was $48.71.

Thus there appears a reduction in the average first payment for the year 1891, as compared with 1890, of $246.38.

The Secretary in noting these conditions gives the reason as follows:

Under the old law the claims had been pending for years, while the proofs were being perfected or they were being reached in due order, and as the first payments included all that should have been paid as pension from the date of filing the claim or of discharge, as the facts warranted, this sum was necessarily large. But the claims under the new law have been disposed of rapidly by the additional force recently allowed by Congress, and as the pension commences from the date of filing the claim subsequent to passage of the act of June 27, 1890, the first payment on each has been small. This is connected also with the fact that many thousands of claimants, despairing of proving disability incurred in line of duty, and only thus pensionable under the old law, elected to receive the benefits of the new general disability act and to take the lesser sums accruing from the date of the last filing of the claim.

Secretary Noble also asserts that within the period named the gross annual payment will drop to $130,000,000, "with a rapid and continuous decline thereafter." There is no consolation for the Democrats in these figures and predictions. They have been charging that the pension expenditures were growing beyond all bounds, and that there was no limit to the money that would be required to meet them. The figures show that the exact opposite is the truth.

Hitherto, until within a very few years, the tariff has been the dread of the dry bones of politics. Now it is seen to be the most interesting—and the most humanly interesting—subject ever introduced in our politics.—Boston Post.

Just so. As the people have become more American and National in feeling the more independent they have grown. They can see no reason why they can not manufacture just as good things as they do across the Atlantic. It has already been demonstrated that they can. Protection was never in such favor as today.

THE DEMOCRATIC supervisor of elections, Welsh, of Onondaga county, who stole the election returns from his precinct and is now a fugitive from the law, is reported to have been in Albany the other day and to have had a long interview with Governor Hill. It is a strange commentary on the New York executive, but it is gratifying to know that David B. Hill is the only governor in the country who could be suspected of harboring and consulting with criminals who are fugitives from justice.

One of the leading mine owners in Colorado says that electricity has opened up a new era in the production of silver. Many of the high mountain mines have been almost valueless because of the expense for transporting fuel to them. Now, through the utilization of water power with the electric motor, these mines can be operated cheaply, and a notable increase of output may be looked for.

A TYPICAL wanderer has stopped temporarily in Dallas. He has traveled for fourteen years, crossed the country from New York to San Francisco, worked his way through South America, and has been a fireman, a police, a railroad man, a sport, a drummer and a soldier. He says the world has used him pretty well so far, and that he intends to wander around until he dies.

Mrs. Logan remains an interesting figure in the affairs of this country. She holds her own against all combinations. Her literary ventures are profitable and her old admirers are more devoted than ever. The old army boys have no one whom they love more sincerely than Mrs. Logan, who was always their friend, through good report or evil report.

GENERAL BUTLER is again reported seriously ill. He has been a good fighter all his life, and men of all parties and shades of opinion will hope that he may yet a while longer fight off this last enemy, death.

BREK CHIST is trying to let it be known that he is just as good a free trader as Brer Mills. The only difference, perhaps, is that he has not done as much grinding in public as the Texas machine.

IF A MAN shamefully abuses his wife in Butte, Mont., half a yard of grape is tacked on his door as a reminder that any trouble in the future will be followed by a call by an undertaker.

MINERS AND MINING.

C. Wilfert, superintendent of the Mineral King mine, who has been stopping at the Tempe hotel for several days has left for the mines.

One fare for the round trip over all roads leading into El Paso has been made as the rate for those attending the southwest Silver Convention at El Paso on the 15th of the present month.

The work through the Car shaft of the Copper Queen Co's property has been suspended for about ten days to give time to change the hoist to a new foundation. About 200 men will have a vacation during that time.

The five-stamp mill being put up on the Hillside mine will be the most complete in the territory. All of the machinery is of the finest, and every late appliance for saving gold and silver is being put into it. The mill will be ready to begin crushing ore about New Year.

P. A. Crague, who has just returned to Prescott from the Hillside mine, states that a miner named Mahony was instantly killed there last week. He had set off three shots but it seems that two missed fire, and, thinking all had been discharged, started back in the tunnel, when, just before reaching the blast, the other shot, which had been hanging fire, was discharged, with the result as stated.

The Mining Review says: It is not pleasant to reflect how the prospector of the primitive type, the hardy, adventurous explorer of pioneer times, is hastening towards extinction. In California this class of men has almost wholly disappeared from the scenes of their early labors, nor are they now at all numerous in the more distant and less settled mining regions. Like the Indian and the buffalo they are rapidly diminishing in numbers, and like them are destined to early disappearance altogether. In the course of a generation or two more they will figure only in history and fiction, being as much an extinct species as the dinothorax or the dodo.

THE CHESHIRE HOG.

Origin of the Most Popular Breed of Swine in New York.

Of the various breeds of swine kept in the United States, the Poland China, Chester White, Duroc-Jersey and Cheshire originated in this country. The Cheshire, while not so well known outside of New York as the other breeds, is, however, superior to them all.

In the central part of the Empire State, the Cheshire and its crosses (Cheshires in appearance) have, to a large extent, displaced all other breeds, and in this section have become the common hog. Attempts have time and again been made by enterprising farmers to introduce some of the other popular breeds, but in every instance they have not been able for more than a year or two to make any headway against the Cheshire. A man who has once had good Cheshires is never quite satisfied with any other breed, and I have yet to meet the first man who has fed Cheshires who does not declare them to be "the best hogs I ever had." The Cheshire was first bred in Jefferson county, N. Y., and for a time was called the Jefferson county hog.

Specimens of the breed were first shown at the state fair in 1859 by A. C. Clark, of Belleville. The breed may be said to have had its beginning by crossing an imported large Yorkshire boar upon selected native sows.

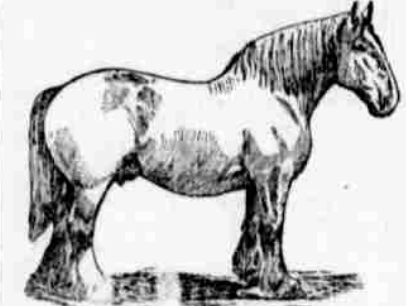

For some years previous to this crossing a good deal of pains had been taken in the neighborhood of Belleville in selecting and improving this stock of hogs, and there were several farmers who had a local reputation for the excellence of their swine. This cross of the large Yorkshire upon these somewhat improved sows gave such a marked result that attention was called to them, selections were carefully made, the best white hogs being selected for breeding stock. When exhibited at the State fair they attracted so much attention that pigs from this stock were sent into various parts of the state, but especially into Onondaga and Madison counties. In 1870 Clark and his partner, Daniel Green, exhibited the stock at the western fair, commencing with the Ohio State fair and ending with the St. Louis fair. At the latter their herd won the great pork packers' prize of $500. This noted success created a great demand for the pigs, till the panic of 1873 suddenly put a stop to all sales. Meanwhile, Mr. Clark, the original breeder, had sold his interest in the stock and moved to the west. When sales stopped in 1873, those who then owned the herd failed and killed most of them and the breed came very near to complete extinction.

In 1873, on account of failing health from teaching, I went upon a farm near Onondaga, N. Y., and bought a litter of very fine pigs called Cheshires, not because they were Cheshires, but simply because they were good pigs. These pigs when fed beside pigs of other breeds proved so superior that I soon concluded I had something extra good, and set about establishing a herd of Cheshires. I raised one sow so fine that she was taken as a model in establishing a herd. Several persons in the vicinity had bought pigs from different breeders in Jefferson county, and I was thus enabled to use Cheshires only. The sow mentioned above was bred to the best Cheshire boar that could be found, and the choicest animals were saved for breeding.—Cor. Rural New Yorker.

Types of the Draft Mare.

We present below pictures of famous prize winning mares of different breeds. The first represents the Scotch Clydesdale mare Chrysal, reproduced from The Breeders' Gazette.

CLYDESDALE MARE CHRYSLAL. The Gazette remarks of Chrysal: "It is not often that brood mares in milk are chosen as subjects for illustration, but there is an air of realism about this Clydesdale mare that lends a charm to the picture not found in the regulation cut." "There is, we find here nothing of the conventional artistic posturing, but the good mare appears just as she is in real life."

ENGLISH SHIRE MARE. The difference between the powerful Clydesdale and the ponderous Shire is well known. There is, moreover, quite as much realism about the Shire, with her gentle nose down to the nasal tube, as there is in the Clyde. Both look like what they are—mothers of splendid lines of horses.

Observation step ladders are to be used in the Belgian artillery, the object being to enable a commander to better direct the fire of his gunners.

The Sun's Pace.

The majority of recent calculations of the sun's pace place it at about forty miles per second, or nearly three thousand times as fast as an express train.—German Syrup.

"August Flower"

I had been troubled five months with Dyspepsia. The doctors told me it was chronic. I had a fullness after eating and a heavy load in the pit of my stomach. I suffered frequently from a Water Brash of clear matter. Sometimes a deadly sickness at the stomach would overtake me. Then again I would have the terrible pains of Wind Colic. At such times I would try to belch and could not. I was working then for Thomas McHenry, Druggist, Cor. Irwin and Western Ave., Allegheny City, Pa., in whose employ I had been for seven years. Finally I used August Flower, and after using just one bottle for two weeks, was entirely relieved of all the trouble. I can now eat things I dared not touch before. I would like to refer you to Mr. McHenry, for whom I worked, who knows all about my condition, and from whom I bought the medicine. I live with my wife and family at 39 James St., Allegheny City, Pa. Signed, JOHN D. COX.
